

INT. PEACH'S APARMENT - LIBRARY - NIGHT

revised 6.26.17

Joe is perusing the books when Peach enters.

Start

PEACH

There you are, Joseph!

Joe turns, coolly. Like he wasn't doing anything.

JOE

Joe. It's just Joe.

PEACH

I'd let you borrow a book but you know, my parents are so possessive of their babies.

JOE

It's a lovely collection, Peaches.

PEACH

It's Peach. And you'd be one to know. You've probably read more of these books than me.

(off his shrug)

A good salesman has to know his product, right?

If she notes his slightly offended reaction, she doesn't show it. Joe nods to one of the shelves.

JOE

DVD collection. Very old school.

PEACH

I know it's corny, but there's something about owning a physical copy. Makes you feel more like you really have the thing you love, you know?

He nods. That, he can agree on. He picks up a DVD: Hannah and Her Sisters.

JOE

Love this one. It's his best film.

PEACH

Huh! I guess we've got something in common after all.

JOE
Something else, you mean.
(she doesn't follow)
Beck.

Right. Right.
(breezily back to the DVD)
I've seen Hannah a thousand times.

JOE
I've seen it a million.

PEACH
(lightly)
Then I guess you win. What's your favorite scene?

JOE
Oh, the end. I'm a romantic and I'll own up to that all day long.

PEACH
(amused)
You're kidding, right?

JOE
Dead serious. The shot in the mirror. The way they kiss when she says she's pregnant.

PEACH
It's just funny you mention that scene because you know that's the one scene Woody didn't want in.

He raises a brow at "Woody." She knows him?

JOE
There's no way that's true.

PEACH
Actually, it is true.

JOE
No offense, I think they kinda let him do his thing, you know?

PEACH
My grandfather worked at the studio and he told Woody they wanted a happier ending.
(MORE)

And Woody being Woody objected, but my grandfather, well, he was the guy, you know? The guy.

JOE

So your grandfather's not JD Salinger?

Peach shoots Joe the subtlest look indicating he crossed a line he shouldn't have. Then shrugs airily, looking away.

PEACH

Anyway. It's funny your favorite scene is the one scene they didn't want. Oh-- good, there's Beck with my drink. Beckish-- we're in here,
I was just getting to know Joseph,
he's hilarious!
